POST-FIRE TREATMENT EFFECTIVENESS FOR HILLSLOPE STABILIZATION

CreateSpace Independent Publishing Platform. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 68 pages. Dimensions: 11.0in. x 8.5in. x 0.2in. This report is a synthesis of post-fire emergency hillslope stabilization treatment effectiveness information that was written to provide guidance for future post-fire treatment selection and use. It builds on an earlier synthesis, Evaluating the Effectiveness of Postfire Rehabilitation Treatments (Robichaud and others 2000). Since that publication, the effectiveness of emergency post fire hillslope treatments have been evaluated in several scientific studies and treatment monitoring reports prepared by Burned Area Emergency Response (BAER) and Emergency Stabilization and Rehabilitation (ESR) teams. In addition, our knowledge of how environmental factors impact treatment effectiveness and the development of new post-fire hillslope treatment products and application techniques has grown. The objective of this document is to synthesize that new information in a format that is easily accessible by post-fire assessment teams and land managers. This synthesis focuses on post-fire hillslope emergency stabilization treatments, including erosion barriers, mulching, chemical soil treatments, and combinations of these treatments. This is a narrow focus given the range of post fire emergency responses typically implemented by BAER teams (see Napper 2006 for a comprehensive review of post-fire treatments). However, these hillslope treatments are usually the most expensive post-fire treatments used, which makes cost effectiveness an important factor in their selection. Post-fire stabilization treatments for roads are frequently implemented to facilitate the passage of potentially larger post-fire water flows that may damage roadways, culverts, bridges, etc. These treatments and their known effectiveness have been addressed in A Synthesis of Post-Fire Road Treatments for BAER Teams (Foltz and others 2009) and are not included in this synthesis. Post-fire treatments to stabilize channels or deflect large channel flows are occasionally recommended after wildfires, but there are few quantified data on treatment performance, and...
