Reviews

This publication will never be straightforward to get going on looking at but really fun to see. This can be for all those who statte that there had not been a worth looking at. You wont really feel monotony at at any moment of your own time (that's what catalogs are for about should you request me).

FBC LTD, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Southern Planter, Vol. 12: Devoted to Agriculture, Horticulture, and the Household Arts; September 1852 The nine counties I have named were selected as all being together in a connected group - and as under circumstances as nearly alike as could be found with the differences of position, c. Required for comparison. No space so large, and also embracing these required differences, can be found more alike in all other respects, and in general. It was necessary, for the very object sought, to take some counties abundantly supplied with marl and others without. Also it was necessary to select counties which had used marl or lime longest and the most extensively. Prince George, James City and Charles City are supposed to occupy this position. On parts of all, either marl or lime has been used longer and over more space, in proportion to their extent, than in any other counties. But even of these, not one-third of the arable, or one eighth of the whole surface has been yet marled or limed, whether sufficiently or insufficiently, properly or injuriously. These three counties, all lying along James River, have each a narrow river margin of originally fertile and very valuable land. As on these very strips of river margin were made the earliest settlements in Virginia, they were greatly exhausted long before the first census. Nearly all the very much larger interior portions of these river counties were poor naturally - and all that had been long cleared and cultivated were also made much poorer by exhausting tillage.
