Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Excerpt from Opportunities for Graduate Study in the British Isles The American student will find a cordial welcome at the British universities. Their good will toward Americans has already been proved by their reception of 2, 000 American student soldiers in the spring of 1919, when the universities were still suffering from the effects of the War. Those soldiers will testify to the welcome they received and to the advantages of these institutions. The present goodwill of the universities for Americans is proved by the establishment of the Ph.D. degree and their willingness to accommodate some American students next autumn, overcrowded as they are by the accumulation of several college generations of British students whose career was interrupted by the War. A number of Colleges with waiting lists have signified to the London office of the American University Union that they would reserve a few places for Americans. In reply to enquiries this office has been advised as to where and in what subjects research students can be accepted. It is already too late in many cases to comply with the requirements as to the dates for filing applications for admission in the autumn of 1920. Intending students should, therefore, communicate at once with the institutions or with this office, or with both. (For addresses of the institutions, see Section 17.) The intending student may obtain advice from the office of the Secretary of the Union, Professor J.W. Cunliffe, School of Journalism, Columbia University, New York City, or from Professor S. P. Duggan, Director of the Institute of International Education, 419 West 117th Street, New York City. Upon his arrival in Great Britain, he may register at the...
