Not illustrated. 1906 Excerpt: .the faithful and efficient performance of the duties to which the Almighty has called them. Later on, husbands and sons take to the hotel to eat and to drink, and afterward to the club or the street corner, to get rid of an unattractive and inefficient home. And volumes are meanwhile written discussing the servant girl problem. I propose to boards having control of approved high schools and academies the following suggestions: Wherever your school is located, in city, town, or country, if it is coeducational, lay out and equip one curriculum along thorough-going domestic art and science lines; and employ a trained and educated woman to teach the special subjects involved. The curriculum should include (i) all the English language and literature which any curriculum contains; (3) at least one foreign language; (3) one or more courses in history; (4) physics, chemistry and advanced physiology and hygiene; (5) a thoroughly good course in art, including music; (6) courses in cooking and general housekeeping, and in nursing. In addition to the above, if you are in a distinctly rural region, lay out a thorough curriculum based on the science of agriculture; and then, if you can afford more, a third curriculum along the regular college-preparatory lines. If your institution is in a thriving industrial town, make your second curriculum either commerce or mechanic arts according to the career the majority of the boys are likely to follow. If you can afford it make the regular collegepreparatory...
