

A Lecture Delivered in the Mechanics Institute, London, on the 30th March, 1840, by Robert Owen, in Reply to the Errors and Misrepresentations Made

By Robert Owen

RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 20 pages. Dimensions: 9.7in. x 7.4in. x 0.0in. This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1841 edition. Excerpt: . . . superior external circumstances, and from which, during every moment of his life, he will derive the most beneficial influences. We will now compare these systems, if possible, without prejudice, and ascertain whether it will not henceforth be for the interest of every individual immediately to abandon the one and to adopt the other. It has been, of late especially, the practice of many members of the Old World, to call the principles and practices of the New World by every foul and degrading epithet; to traduce and vilify it by every kind of vulgarism. There is no argument or common sense in these proceedings. And all 1 shall now say upon this part of the subject is, that what the opponents of the system which we advocate have been reported to have said in parliament, what they have written in the newspapers and other...

DOWNLOAD PDF

READ ONLINE
[5.33 MB]

Reviews

Thorough information! Its this kind of very good read. It is written in basic words and not hard to understand. You won't feel monotony at anytime of your respective time (that's what catalogues are for regarding should you question me).

-- Roel Bogisich Sr.

The book is straightforward in read safer to recognize. This really is for anyone who statte there had not been a worthy of looking at. You may like just how the blogger create this publication.

-- Friedrich Nolan