Operation Paperclip was the code name for the 1945 Office of Strategic Services, Joint Intelligence Objectives Agency recruitment of German scientists from Nazi Germany to the U.S. after VE Day. President Truman authorized Operation Paperclip in August 1945; however he expressly ordered that anyone found 'to have been a member of the Nazi party and more than a nominal participant in its activities, or an active supporter of Nazi militarism' would be excluded. Under this criterion many of the scientists recruited would have been ineligible. These included Wernher von Braun, Arthur Rudolph and Hubertus Strughold, who were all officially on record as Nazis and listed as a 'menace to the security of the Allied Forces.' All were cleared to work in the U.S. after having their backgrounds 'bleached' by the military; false employment histories were provided, and their previous Nazi affiliations were expunged from the record. The paperclips that secured newly-minted background details to their personnel files gave the operation its name. 132 pp. Englisch.
